

Texas Triangle Multifamily 2026: Why the Window Is Open.

The U.S. multifamily sector is exiting a once-in-a-generation supply shock. Texas absorbed more of that supply than any other state — and the digestion is now nearly complete. What follows is a 6–12 month window of trough-cycle entry pricing, intact demand, and motivated sellers driven by a $162B refinancing wave. Sponsors who deploy capital now own the rent recovery curve Yardi, Northmarq, Origin, and Cushman & Wakefield all project for 2027–2029.

U.S. Multifamily Deliveries — The Supply Cliff is Here

Sources: Yardi Matrix Winter 2026 · Freddie Mac · CBRE

Five tailwinds converging in 2026.

01

Supply Cliff

U.S. starts down 56% from 2022 peak. Texas pipeline down 45–76%.

02

Capital Reset

Cap rates plateaued ~5.7% for 7 quarters — longest in 25 years.

03

Demand Engine

Texas #1 in population growth. Houston #1 metro at 1.6%.

04

Renter Lock-In

Own-vs-rent gap in Texas now exceeds $1,200/month.

05

Maturity Wall

$162B in multifamily loans maturing in 2026 — +56% YoY.

Freddie Mac and Fannie Mae both project Houston flips from a 6,000-unit supply surplus in 2025 to a 5,800-unit demand deficit in 2026. When the two GSEs converge on the same call, that is the institutional buy signal.

SECTION · MARKET VERDICTS

The Texas Triangle is not one market.

It is four distinct multifamily ecosystems at four different points in the cycle. FoxRidge's deployment posture as of Q2 2026:
